'THIRD DEGREE' OFFERING OF THE PLAYERS COMPANY FOR TONIGHT

Tonight the Players All-Star Company will present "The Third Degree," another Charles Klein success. The title explains its theme. "The Third Degree" is a method employed by the police in large cities to extract evidence from criminals. The idea of making a man confess to a crime which he has not committed is not new in stage version any more than it is in life, but the dramatist handles it in a skillful way and develops a story afterwards with true and human methods. From the moment the curtain rises the action begins. In shedding light upon the methods of the police department and surrounding his story with a number of thrilling features, Mr. Klein has built up a play which, although a melodrama, is one of those which is bound to meet with a hearty welcome in the high-class theaters because of its strong treatment and admirable acting. Miss Florence Oakley will be seen as the wife of a young man who is accused of committing murder and is put through the third degree test and confesses after three hours of torturing. She alone remains loyal. His father refuses aid, and she sets herself to defeat the machinations of the law. The part is one that will give Miss Oakley ample opportunity to display her acting. George Webb will be seen in another powerful role as will also Cliff Thompson and Guy Hittner. The entire company will be seen to excellent advantage. A special matinee will be given tomorrow, being Christmas, but no matinee will be given Saturday.

WILLIAM FARNUM IN STRONG DRAMA VEHICLE AT THE POPULAR THEATER

Dramatic to a marked degree and sensational in many places "The Redemption of David Corson," the current offering at the Popular theater is a play with a punch, a play that starts the brain to working and induces deep thought; withal it is something different to the ordinary run of motion pictures, being different to anything the Famous Players have produced in Honolulu under the management of Blair's Greater Photo-Plays.

The entire plot revolves around the love of a staid young Quaker for a frivolous gypsy girl and a trivial lie—inferring, not told—leads to the expulsion of the Quaker youth from his religious sect. His love for the gypsy leads him to commit murder, almost; following which he sinks to the lowest depths only to be raised again through a lumberman-evangelist whom he had shown the light when a strict practitioner of the Quaker creed.

William Farnum in the role of David Corson is given every opportunity to display his ability as an actor, which ability has made him a big favorite on the speaking stage and in the silent drama. The supporting cast is on the Famous Players order, each member being a finished artist and working excellently with the particular star.

The "Perils of Pauline," tenth episode, presents what might be termed a series of "desertion" scenes. Pauline is kidnapped and imprisoned in a deserted roadhouse, later to be removed to a deserted lighthouse, only to be finally rescued by Harry, her sweetheart, who breaks into a deserted life-saving station, "borrows" the paraphernalia, shoots a lifeline through a window in the lighthouse by the use of which Pauline is saved from the kidnappers. The pair of films are good.

The Pathe Weekly news film introduces Mexican and European war scenes besides showing a number of current incidents throughout the United States.

The entire bill is a good one and well worth seeing. It will be repeated twice today and twice tomorrow.

MARY PICKFORD AT LIBERTY AND EMPIRE THEATERS

Mary Pickford, America's little sweetheart, will erect patrons at a newly furnished and renovated Ye Liberty theater this evening. Miss Pickford to be seen in a wonderful and splendidly staged drama, "The Enemy's Help."

The opening scene of this picture gives promise of an interesting story. The talented little actress, a universal favorite in the United States, who within late years she has appeared before more than a million spectators daily, is given a consensual role in the playlet. There are a number of acceptable persons included in the cast beside the reigning favorite. Mary Pickford, however, is not the sole feature at Ye Liberty, with its reopening, "The Kangaroo," a thrilling five-act photo-play telling a story of the slave days before the civil war, is declared competent critics to contain an abundance of action. The production came under the watchful supervision of Horace Dickson, the author who in offering "Old Reliable" some time ago, made a name for himself.

Much of the horror of the intended slave trade is shown in this picture. No robbery, large or small, was disdained by the leaders of the syndicate who trafficked in human flesh. The working of the "underground railway," a factor in the handling of negroes at that time, is depicted with vividness and a faithfulness of detail. The Consolidated Amusement Company announces that Mary Pickford will also be seen in pleasing photo-plays at the Empire theater each week.

CANADIAN TROOPS FARE ROUGHLY ON BRITISH SOIL

[Associated Press]

SALISBURY, England. — Canadian troops encamped at Salisbury Plain have had a rough experience since they landed in England. It has rained nearly every day since the Canadians entered camp here and the flat grounds are a sea of mud.

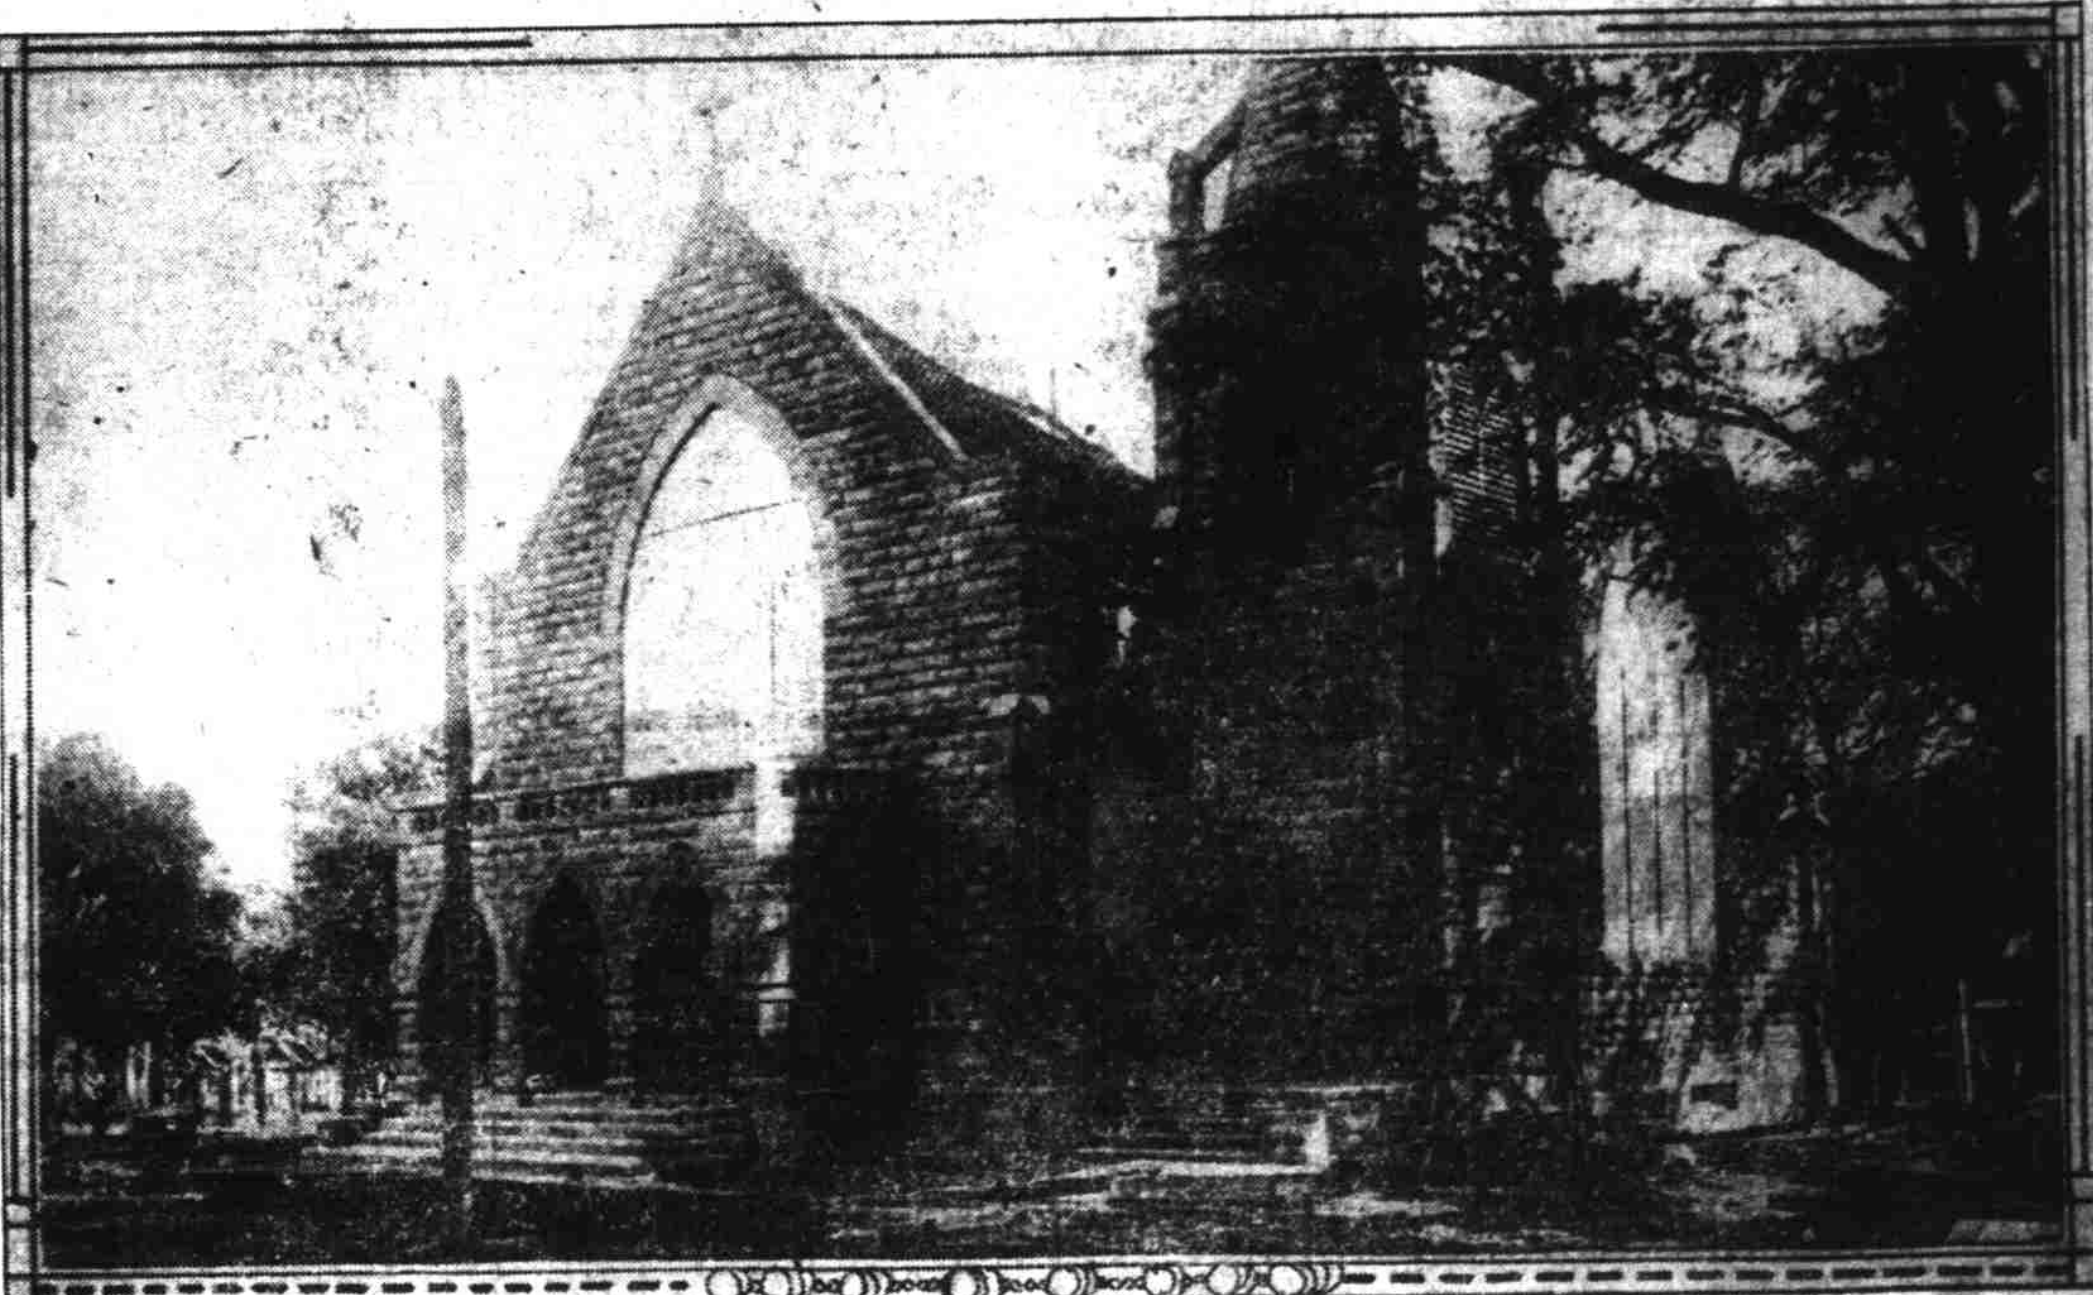

All branches of the service have been greatly handicapped by the mud and rain. Drill has been very trying. However, the Canadian organizations are showing the best of spirit and patiently undergoing the training necessary to qualify them for service at the front.

A complete reorganization in the Canadian troops is taking place to make them uniform with the British army. Instead of having each company act as a separate unit, two companies are combined, one captain acting as the senior officer, the other as his assistant, and each lieutenant commanding one of four platoons with about sixty men each. This plan makes it possible for the senior captain to be relieved of all routine duties so he can give his time to the broader administrative and military problems. The Canadians have taken very kindly to the change, the lieutenants being especially fond of the plan as it places greater responsibility and independence upon them than the old single company system.

Rumors are circulated in camp almost daily that the Canadian contingent will be sent to Egypt as soon as it is whipped into shape. The Canadians are quite willing to go anywhere where there is fighting. As much excitement is promised in Egypt, the Canadians are anxious to go there, hoping to be transferred later to France so they can have a chance at the Germans.

Thirty-five mills in Great Britain will be shut down as a result of the embargo on the exportation of tin plate to Sweden, Denmark and Holland.

Miss Mary S. McLean, a Brooklyn school teacher, fell dead on the street while returning to school from luncheon.

The Sacred Heart Church, Punalou, will begin the Christmas celebration with a solemn midnight mass tonight, to which everybody is invited. Special music has been prepared for the occasion. A beautiful solo, "Minuit Chretien," will be sung by Mrs. F. P. Reynolds.

As the street cars will run an hour later tonight, those desiring to attend the midnight mass will be able to do so and yet leave in time to catch the cars for their homes.

Tomorrow morning masses will be celebrated at half past eight and nine o'clock. Special hymns, appropriate for the occasion, will be sung, principal among which will be a solo by Mrs. Riley H. Allen.—Advertisement.
